DROSPECTUS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA STATESMAN.—The undersigned propose, on the first day of January next, at Raleigh, North Carolina, to begin the publication of The North Carolina Statesman, a sen weekly, and weekly paper devoted to Politics, News, and Miscellaneous subjects, and respectfully solicit for it, a share of the patronage of the Democratic party, their friends, and Invited by many leading persons of the States Rights Republican party, to propagate and defend princ ples which we have always held, and regard as the only basis of prosperity in our form of government, and inspired with a sin ere desire to serve that party, and advance its interests, we propose to issue a paper at the seat of the State Government In the field of editorial enterprise, there is ample room for those who are now holding position, as well as for others, who may choose to enter into fair competition. The propagation of the principles of our party is a duty at once i portant, and to us, peculiarly agreeable. The attractions of the editorial profession and its honorable toils, together with a desire to extend its influence, has had much weight in the decision which we have made—a profession at once dignified and elevated, where the highest intellectual gifts may find full employment, and the purest patriotism make contribu-tion to the public weal. We are persuaded that a Journal conducted with fairness and discretion—uninfluenced by self.shness and devoted to principle, may secure sufficient patronage, without interfering with the claims or rights of any, now prosecuting the same great work.

Although mainly devoted to the discussion of such politi

al questions, as they arise, which affect the welfare of North Carolina, whether relating to the Federal, or State govern ments or such local interests, as may be of importance, it is nevertheless intended to make the Statesman a Medium o eneral Intelligence. Accordingly the state of the Market n the principal cities, to which our commerce goes, shall b fully and accurately reported, nor will the attention of the ovements, as a means indispensable to the development of the Mineral and Agricultural resources of the State. interests of primary importance, shall always command thei fullest attention. To this, they propose to add, carefull selected and original Literary matter. Being strictly con-servative, they propose to avail themselves of all the lights of experience in that progress, which promises the advance-ment of the interests of North Carolina. The general objects of the proposed paper being thus clearly indicated, it may not be amiss briefly to state the particular views which are to be sustained by it as a political jour-

1st. Our purpose being to publish a paper purely demcratic, according to the straitest requirements of that party, we shall advocate strict party organization in its fullest and most comprehensive sense,—an organization which originates in the popular will expressed by the people in their primary assemblies, and which has been so successfully introduced among the Democracy of many of the other States-by which the rank and file of the party, are in fact, those who indicate its decisions, and being all brought into action express their will imperatively, thus, by open and fair deal-ing commanding respect and obedience—an organization of the people, and not of intriguers; restoring power to those who by sufferance have tolerated its temporary usurpation 2nd. The Democratic party shall always find in us adve cates of their right to select their standard-bearers, and to command acquiescence, in decisions made by conventions fairly elected in their primary meetings. Standing upon the good old State's Rights platform of '98 we shall resolutely oppose all Government corporations created by Congress for the purpose of Internal Improvement, the regulation of Fi-nance or any other measure inconsistent with the Rights of the States.

3rd. Believing that the platform adopted by the lat

Baltimore convention contains the democratic creed, they ex-pect cordially to sustain the present Administration, trustng that the policy adopted by those who compose it, will h regulated by the cardinal doctrines of the American Democ

4th. They will advocate all the measures of Internal Improvement as promised by judicious prosecution to promote the interests of the people and diffuse the benefits of a system already enjoyed by portions of the State.

5th. The disposition of the Public Lands being a question of the most absorbing interest, we believe it should be at once met and settled. The unjust and unequal legislation of Congress, in relation to those lands and the large and frequency in the provider of the quent appropriations made to the new States, indicate a fi-nal departure from the old and wise policy of appropriating the proceeds of their sales to the payment of the public debt, and the expenses of the Government. It has for some time ceased to be either a subject of hope or expectation that there will ever be a return to a policy which had so much to reccommend it. Believing that this system of squandering and prodigality is not only to continue but to grow worse, we shall protest against it, and assert the right of the old States to their equitable share of the lands which remain. The power "to dispose of the Public Lands being explicitly declared in the Constitution, the exercise of that power is a declared in the Constitution, the exercise of that power is a question of policy both as to the time and the mode. Believing as we do, that it has become the settled policy of Congress to squander the Public Lands, we adopt the patriotic language of Mr. Dobbin, and say that "all of North Carolina's sons, both whigs and Democrats should protest and demand North Carolina's share of the public domain."

6th. Approving of the sentiments of the inaugural of the President, we shall oppose the acquisition of Cuba or any other foreign territory, unless such acquisition be in accordance with existing treaties, and entirely consistent with the national honor. national honor.

TERMS—For the Semi-weekly, $4 per annum; and for the Weekly, $2, payment in advance.

RALEIGH, SATURDAY, OCT. 29, 1853.

MR. VENABLE-THE PRESS, &c. It is known to many-and we now come forward to make the fact known to more—that Mr. Venable, though he has received ardent support and many favors from the Editorial profession of the country, is nevertheless in the habit of speaking in unkind and disrespectful terms of the press, and of boasting of the triumphs which he has achieved over it. While in Congress he assailed both Mr. Ritchie and Mr. Donelson, of the Union, as good and sound Democrats as he was, to say the least; and he takes peculiar pride in declaring that he bearded these gentlemen and brought them to terms. We said Mr. Ritchie is as sound a Democrat as Mr. Venable was; but this is weak language when applied to Thomas Ritchie. He is the Nestor not only of Editors but of Democrats; and when his epitaph is written, the world may well exclaim, "we ne'er shall look upon his like again."

Indeed, Mr. Venable appears somehow or other to down the land demolishing Editors and newspapers.

During his late campaign he not only freely denounced such Democrats as Asa Biggs, but he characterized in the bitterest terms every Democratic press in the State which dared to question the correctness or propriety of his course as a public man. The Editor of this journal incurred, of course, a large share of his denunciations, and this too, we believe, before we had taken ground against him. He said he was not to be controlled, or dictated to, or put down by sheets of paper smeared with ink, or by type-stickers, ink-daubers, &c .- as if any one had sought to dictate to or put him down; and this too when the very presses opposed to him had taken their course reluctantly and only as a last resort. Our course in the late campaign was adopted under strong convictions of duty. We had no alternative, when a Whig came out, but to go for that Democrat who stood upon the State and Baltimore platforms. We had warned the party solemnly of the danger they were incurring by not holding a Convention; and no Convention being held, we were compelled, under the circumstancesall other considerations aside-to regard that candidate as the strongest man who agreed with the party on organization, on the Cuban and land questions. and not Mr. Venable, who had spoken with contempt of Conventions of the party, and who was substantially with the Whigs on both the questions just referred to. If we had remained silent we should have proved ourselves an unworthy sentinel; if we had gone for the candidate not upon the platforms, we should have shown little respect for our party by assuming that such a candidate was the strongest in a District which can east over two thousand Democratic majority. Is not this so? No man regretted more than we did this condition of things, but we felt and still feel we were not responsible for it. Mr. Venable had advocated a Convention with l the ardor with which he sought to secure his own election without one, a Convention would have been held, and the District would not now be misrepresented by a Whig. But no-he was not to be disposed of by "bobtailed lawyers, broken down constables, and cross-road politicians "-he had met Ritchie and Donelson, and put them to the wall, and he was not to be called to account by type-stickers, ink-daubers and the like. We take leave to inform the gentleman that the profession of the Editor is quite as respectable as that of the law; and we advertise him of the fact that no man of any party can, in this country, habitually underrate and abuse the Editorial profession and live politically. We tell him, furthermore, that we neither envy him his former place, nor would we exchange places with him now. We repel with scorn and indignation his reflections upon our profession, and we declare at the same time that we had rather be the humblest of Editors, governed by principle and a regard for truth, than to fret under political disappointments justly incurred and be known as a politician untrue alike to platforms, to party, and to friends.

Mr. Cantwell alludes in handsome terms in his prospectus of the "North Carolina Statesman," to the profession of the Editor-"a profession," he says, "at once dignified and elevated, where the highest intellectual gifts may find full employment, and the purest patriotism make contribution to the public weal." Surely he could not have been apprized, when he penned the foregoing, of the estimate placed by Mr. Venable on the public press-surely he could not have known of the contemptuous terms of type-sticker, ink-dauber, &c., so freely used by that gentleman whenever he speaks of those Editors who have the boldness to criticise his conduct or condemn his votes. We know Mr. Venable much better than Mr. Cantwell does; and we may venture to inform him in advance that so long as he shall go (as we cannot believe he will) for Mr. Venable right or wrong, he will be an excellent and most clever Cantwell; but the moment when, from considerations of duty or regard for party obligations, he shall speak out in condemnation of Mr. Venable, he will at once incur his displeasure, his opposition, and his abuse. We speak from experience, and we cannot be mistaken in what we say.

It is unnecessary, we trust, that we should remind the people that the public press is, after all, their most vigilant and disinterested sentinel and their surest reliance in times of trial. It has its faults, it is true; but then it can have fewer motives than mere politicians to deceive the people or mislead them in publicaffairs. Presses properly conducted are the organs of the people, for they seek not so much to dictate and lead as to speak for and inform. Editors of experience and possessed of even ordinary knowledge of human nature, know that efforts to influence the people against their own interests and in favor of themselves or of particular men, are always unpopular and frequently abortive; and dictation, whenever or however attempted, is sure to meet, as it deserves, with popular rebuke. In addition to this, the Editor who studies his duties and is devoted to them, is in a better condition than a mere politician to take a calm and general survey of things; he receives his information daily from all quarters-he turns it over in his mind and reduces it to shape, and uses it to the best advantage for his cause; and, looking to the people as his supporters and friends, more than to what are called leaders in his party, he is constantly nerved to maintain principle under all circumstan ces, and to go for the greatest good to the greatest number without regard to men. He knows, for instance, that if he should sustain one man in preference to principle, the whole cause, so far as he is concerned, will be endangered; and he knows, also, that his surest means of success in his profession is to cling to the masses, who alone have the power to sustain and reward. He has, in a word, almost every motive to keep him in the right path and on the side of the people and their rights; and that day will be a sad one for public liberty in this country when the people shall discard these sentinels upon the watchtower, and give attention and pre-eminence to brawl- Wednesday, the 9th of next month.

ing demagogues, who have nothing to recommend them but "much speaking," and the facility with which they change their tactics and their principles. The press is expressly referred to and protected in all free Constitutions as one of the bulwarks of public liberty. It is therefore, so to speak, a great Constitutional establishment; our fathers felt its advantages to employ Editors, and go to work to many foeb and benefits, and this generation, we are sure, will neither discredit nor disown it because it is true to the people and their rights.

It was charged against the Editor of this ournal during the late campaign, that he was desirous of representing this District in Congress, and that his course towards Mr. Venable was influenced by a hope that he could supplant him, and thus pave the way to the accomplishment of this desire. We repelled this charge, at the time; but it was repeated, and it will no doubt be revived and used again with the view of impairing the force of the statements and arguments we may present in the unfortunate controversy now going on. We therefore come forward to declare, that we neither desire nor seek any office either at the hands of the Administration or of the people; and that we could not, under any circumstances, accept a nomination for Congress even if unanimously made and tendered us by the Convention for the District. A Convention, we take it for granted, will be held in 1855; and we hope to see it as full as possible of Delegates fresh from the people. We have no right to assume that it will be controlled by "intriguers" or be unfair in its deliberations and decisions; and we pledge to its nominee, in advance, our cheerful and earnest support.

No man cay say, with truth, that we were governed in the late campaign by selfish or unworthy motives. We endeavored to act for the good of our party, not only in this District, but out of it; and we know that no calculations as to our political advancement or promotion had any agency in shaping our course. The uncharitable, or those prone to condemn on suspicion or without a hearing, may receive this declaration or reject it, just as they choose; we are satisfied with a sense of our own integrity in the matter, and can outlive, and will outlive (with the blessing of Providence) all such charges as these.

We can confidently appeal to our past course, while in charge of this journal, to refute any insinuation that we are an office-seeker or an "intriguer" for other men's places. In 1846 the Democracy of Wake did us the honor to elect us to the House of Commons; we served one term, and at the end of it voluntarily declined to be a candidate for re-election. We felt then, as we do now, that our duties here demanded our constant attention; and we felt then, as we do now, that it would not be becoming in us to hold our present position and at the same time take advantage of the influence which belongs to it to obtain places of emolument or power. Mr. Venable would be much more apt to "intrigue" himself into Congress than we would be to "intrigue" him out for our own benefit or for any one else; we fight no battles in ambush or with masked batteries, but in the open field with the daylight of truth shining upon ll, and an honest people standing by to judge and decide for themselves. To that Democratic people we now appeal, and we thank God we can do it with pure motives and clean hands. To that people our highest loyalty and best exertions are due; they have stood by us amid all the vicissitudes and struggles of a ten year's service, and our faith in them is as firm as the foundations of the Alps. They will rebuke disorganizers, and scatter the schemes of the factious and selfish to the winds. They will see to it that their voice is heard and respected in the next Assembly, as it was not in the last; and they will hold to a terrible reckoning, in advance, any man who shall presume to establish new creeds for them, or who shall labor to bring discredit on those means of organization and concentration of strength by which alone, next to principle, their present ascendency in the State can be maintained.

We trust our readers will pardon these allusions to ourself. They are made in self-defence, for the good of the Democratic cause, and from a wish to put on record a declaration which ought to silence those who have charged us with unworthy motives in the late contest.

The following Resolutions were adopted by the late Convention in this City composed of Sons of Temperance and prohibitionists:

" Resolved, That this Convention views with the deepest and most anxious concern, the wide-spread influence of intemperance over the citizens of this State, in spite of the vigorous efforts to suppress it. and the general disgust with which it is regarded by the public mind.

Resolved. That the demands of an enlightened age, and the moral, social and economical wants of our people, call loudly for more effective measures to secure its suppression and ultimate annihilation. Resolved, That the sale of intoxicating liquors as beverage in this State, under the sanction of law, both by wholesale and retail, is the chief obstacle to the success of the reformatory measures hitherto brought into requisition to suppress intemperance. Resolved. That it is the duty of the Legislature of this State, at its next session, or as soon as it is clearly ascertained that a majority of the people desire to pass a law prohibiting entirely the buying and selling within the limits of this State of all intoxicating liquors for other than medicinal, or mechanical purposes; and that this Convention most urgently calls upon the citizens of the State, everywhere, to memorialize the next General Assembly to pass such

Resolved. That while the friends of Temperance will urge upon the Legislature the passage of such a law, and boldly proclaim it to be their purpose agitate it until the people of this State shall in the exercise of their sovereignty demand it; they are willing to leave it to the discretion and wisdom of our Legislators acting under the instructions of their constituencies, such modifications of the present license law, or the adoption of such new measures for the suppression of Intemperance, as they may deem advisable :-until the people of the State clearly and emphatically require a prohibitory law.

Resolved. That this Convention most distinctly disclaims for the friends of Temperance in this State any design to mix up this great question with party politics, or to affiliate with either of the political parties of the country, unless the alternative be forced upon us; nor does this Convention deem it desirable or best for ultimate success and permanency that the measure proposed, be carried by either political

Resolved, That while this Convention most ardent ly calls upon every citizen of the State, both Whig and Democrat, friendly to the Temperance cause, to exert his influence to bring out for the next Legislature candidates of high moral worth, sober habits and intelligence-all, good men and true; yet it wholly disclaims all intention of committing any Temperance man to the support of any particular candidate, in opposition to his own convictions of propriety and duty."

THE NEW PAPER It seems that New York tactics are to be troduced into North Carolina in the getting up to publishing of the "North Carolina Statesman" is the custom among corrupt and broken down w ticians in that State to raise money by subscribin public sentiment; and the same custom is to adopted here. Money, we learn, has been subsection ed by various persons, at Mr. Venable's earnest ne sonal solicitation, for the purpose of starting is new paper; and this money is to be used until so time as the paper may become able to sustain itself

This paper can do no good, under the circumsta ces, to the Democratic cause; and as some of the planks in its platform are more or less of Whig ma. terial, we think it would have been quite as well and much more becoming in Mr. Venable to have handed the money over to Mr. Gales or Mr. Doub, of the Register and Star, or at least to have made them a tender of it. We have no doubt they would spurn it, especially if coupled with the condition that they should advocate his claims or endorse his vani ties and conceits; but then, as a matter of ordinar justice, under the circumstances, we think he ough to have made the tender. The Register and Star har done much more for the cause of distribution than this professed organ ever can do; and besides, in opposing the honorable acquisition of Cuba, as Mr. Venable did in his speech of January last, they would make no sacrifices of pledges or position.

We take this occasion to state that we have uniformly relied upon the masses of the people for parronage and support. We have never sought patron. age either at the hands of the Federal or the State governments, or from corporations; and if the Democratic masses should ever come to think so little of our services and our principles as to decline to encourage us by individual subscriptions, we will abandon our place and leave the field to such journals as may have been established either by charity or rengeance subscriptions. No club of men shall ever have it in their power to point to their hundred dollar contributions, and say to us, do our willnever! This paper is the organ of the Democratic people, not of mere politicians, or of disappointed aspirants, nor yet of long-pursed men who vainly inagine that the press can be swayed and public opinion manufactured by dollars and cents.

The Boston Post gives the following brief but telling sketch of the late victories of the Democracy The Whig leaders declare that the Democratic party is falling to pieces, and the people answer this declaration by gains for the Democrats in all quarters The Post says:

"The success of the administration has been brilliant beyond example in our politics; and those who have represented the President to have lost ground have been refuted by every election that has taken place since the inauguration. This succession of victories, too, has been achieved after the policy of the administration had been exemplified in action, The President simply recognized the democratic party as re-united on its old foundations-on those old States Rights and Union principles, a rigid adherence to which has maintained the democracy as a party and preserved the integrity of the nation. He has planted himself on the compromise platform. He has followed the frank declaration of the inaugural with an energetic execution of the laws, and carried out in his appointments the policy of conciliation that was laid down by the democratic party at Baltimore. The consequence is peace and harmony to all sections of the Union and victories every where for the democracy; thus exemplifying the old maxim that as fedralism sinks the country rises. The successes of the democracy should cheer eve ry true friend of republican progress. The administration stands firmer in the support of the people now than it did on the day of the delivery of the inaugural. The elections show this. One of the old whig States is Kentucky, but when were the whigs so badly off as they are now in that State, with one half of the delegation to Congress democrats? Tennessee, too, has cut up the whig brigade terribly, by electing Andrew Johnson governor by an unprecedented majority and a democratic majority of its delegation in Congress. North Carolina has gained on her democratic delegation. We name these States because they are emphatically the strong holds of whiggery. If the ridiculous charge of affiliation with abolitionism does not make capital for those who utter it, in these States, when will it make capital? If we go to other States at the South, to Virginia, Alabama and Texas, there are the same gratifying results. The Old Dominion leads off with an entire Democratic delegation to Congress. Alabama has gained a Democratic member-has a Democratic majority in her Legislature to elect two U. S. Senators, and a Democratic Governor. Texas has elected two Democrats. To crown all, as to the Southern elections, in the most important of all, where the "Union Whigs" were confident of victory, in Georgia, the Democrats have made clean work by electing their Governor, a majority of Congressmen and of the Legislature. Then there is a gain of one member in Arkansas. At the North, the election in Maine shows a Democratic vote large enough, when, united, to overwhelm whigism. In Vermont the Democracy have made a splendid gain. In Connecticut they have swept the board in town elections. In the great States of Pennsylvania and Ohio their majority is unprecedented! Such are the results in six months of the trial of the policy of the Administration. When was such success seen before in the career of an Administration?"

DELEGATES FROM NORTH CAROLINA. The State Agricultural Society of North Carolina, which was in session here last week, appointed a commission, consisting of Messrs. Elliott, Whitaker, Burgwynn and Taylor, to attend the Maryland State Fair now in session, for the purpose of drawing up a report of their proceedings, and submit it to the next meeting of the North Carolina society. The Society also appointed Delegates to attend the Virginia State Fair, which commenced vesterday.

Good News. It is stated that by the first of next month, a Northern mail will be assigned to the Wilmington and Manchester Railroad, in addition to the sea route from Wilmington to Charleston. On or before the first of January the boats will be set aside, and a double mail will then be forwarded by the Wilmington and Manchester route. This intelligence will be received with much delight by all who have travelled from Charleston to Wilmington in those steamers, and experienced the nauscating sea-sickness which invariably occurs.

The Warrenton News appears in a new dress, and is looking very well. We congratulate friend Moore on his improvement, and were at a loss to know why he left the State Fair so suddenly until we received his last paper. He went home to put on his new clothes.

We are gratified to learn that A. M. Lewis, Esq. of Franklin, has determined to remove to this City with the view of pursuing his profession as a member of the bar. He will be a worthy accession to our community, and will find among us many warm friends.

THE GRAIN MARKETS. Flour was selling in Baltimore on Wednesday, at $6,25. White wheat was commanding $1,45 in New York. Thirty thousand bushels of corn changed hands at former prices.

The pianos, advertised in another column, by Mr. Kliffmiller, are well worthy the attention of those who may wish to purchase.
